"SMOKED OUT"
Universal One-reel Comedy
With
Arthur Lake and Olive Hasbrouck.

Arthur wants to show his girl how sophisticated he is and when she stops at his gate for a chat he takes out a cigarette and smokes it, much to her surprise. His dad comes out on the porch and sees him. Not approving of young boys using the "filthy weed" Dad decides to cure him. He invites his son into the house for a real man's smoke and gives him one of his perfectos. Arthur tries it and at first finds it real good. But later he finds that he is getting rather ill and when he eats some sandwiches his father offers him, the end arrives and he makes a beeline for the stairs.

The next day, being his birthday, his girl calls with a present for him. Arthur opens the package and finds a box of big stogie cigars. He is furious at first, but seeing the joke is on him he turns to Dad and swears he will never smoke again until he is twenty-one.
